

Racan Larson Trap

Instructions for assembly

The Racan Larsen trap is perfect for capturing magpies and other species of corvid. This trap should only be used in compliance with the .gov general licencing (GL40, GL41, GL42) If unsure about any legal aspect of using or trapping wild birds, then please contact DEFRA directly or refer to <https://www.gov.uk/government/collections/bird-licences>.

1) Unfold the Larsen trap and stand up right.

2) Fold down the inside fence to 90 degrees and secure with zip ties.

3) Fold over the top fence and secure with zip ties.

4) Turn the trap upside down and secure the second fence with zip ties in the same way.

5) Lay the trap down flat with the metal plated side facing upwards.

6) Open the fence next to the metal plate and add two perching wooden planks, making sure one is under the metal plate (in the shade) and the other underneath the gate (in the sunlight).

7) Press down on the spring-loaded fence to open it and opposition two wooden planks so they prop open the fence.

Welfare of the birds used for the trap or captured by the trap

- Gov.uk general licences permits to the trapping and disposal of magpies and other species of corvid. If this includes minimal distress to the decoy and captured bird.
- Clean food and water should be readily available to the decoy bird.
- The trap and feeding area should be kept clean to avoid risk of infection or disease.
- The decoy bird must have access to shelter from extreme weather conditions.
- Caught magpies must be released or disposed of on the same day of being captured.
- If other species of bird or animal are caught in the trap they must be released unhardened as soon as discovered.
- The trap MUST be checked a minimum of once every 24 hours to insure the welfare of the decoy bird and to check for captured animals.

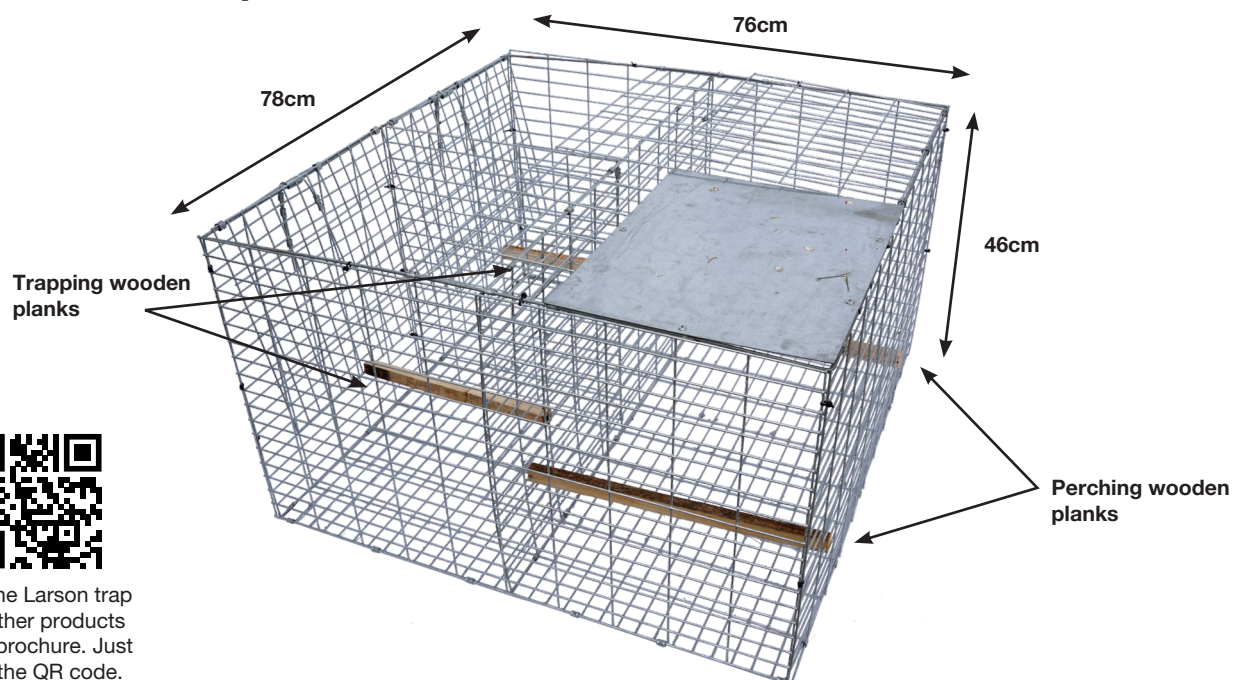

Health and safety

Crows and magpies are known to be aggressive birds. So to ensure the trap users safety please wear protective arm and hand wear. If bit or scratched please seek medical attention as soon as possible.

(Food and water are not supplied with the trap. Please refer to the DEFRE website to check that correct food is being supplied for the decoy bird)
